The UNC Center for Slavic, Eurasian, and East European Studies is proud to host

WHO “OWNED” THE ARCTIC?
An International and Interdisciplinary Conference

28 March 2012

The Arctic lies at the nexus of CRITICAL GLOBAL ISSUES, including climate change, energy, peace and security, global competitiveness, and twenty-first century strategic partnerships.

Join policymakers, academics, students, and environmentalists from RUSSIAN, CANADIAN, INDIGENOUS, AMERICAN, and OTHER PERSPECTIVES as we consider “Who ‘Owns’ the Arctic?”

Michael Byers • Mary Simon • Pavel Baev

Hosted by the UNC Center for Slavic, Eurasian, and East European Studies in conjunction with the Government of Canada and the Duke Center for Canadian Studies. Additional support from Carolina Seminars, Division of Earth and Ocean Sciences at Duke’s Nicholas School of the Environment, Kenan Institute for Ethics, Kennan Institute of the Woodrow Wilson Center, UNC College of Arts and Sciences, UNC Global, UNC Global Research Institute, and UNC Institute for the Environment.
