Visit by King’s College London
Faculty of Arts & Humanities
April 7, 2016

Briefing for Jonathan Hartlyn and Terry Rhodes

Time: 12:15 – 1:45 pm

Logistics: Please meet Bob Miles and the delegation at the Carolina Inn, Crossroads Restaurant, for lunch (it is possible that Katie Bowler Young will also attend). At the end of lunch, the group will move to the Inn lobby to have a photo taken by Shannon Harvey, Global Relations Assistant.

Delegation: Russell Goulbourne, Dean, Faculty of Arts & Humanities
(bios, p. 2) Raphael Woolf, Vice-Dean (External Relations), Faculty of Arts & Humanities

Visit Purpose: This visit is for Russell and Raphael to become more familiar with UNC and to the faculty and administrators who are central to the collaborations in the UNC-King’s Strategic Alliance in the arts and humanities (see agenda, p. 4). The main purpose of the lunch is to affirm the strong commitment of UNC’s College to the partnership, especially to continuing collaborations in the arts, social sciences, and humanities, as well as the extensive involvement of graduate students (see talking points below). In addition, possibilities for continued growth and collaboration can be discussed. King’s should be emphasized as one of UNC’s most important strategic partnerships.

Publicity: Global Relations will draft a story for the UNC Global website.

Attachment: UNC-King’s Activity Since 2010

Talking Points:

- Offer strong support from the College for the UNC-King’s partnership and the value it has brought to UNC faculty and students (both undergraduate and graduate), especially in the core collaborations in arts and humanities. Over 20 departments/schools from UNC are now involved.
- Describe the historic and current areas of collaboration involving a wide range of College departments – highlight examples from the UNC-King’s Activity document (attached).
- Emphasize the importance of undergraduate exchange, which has involved over 430 students since 2004 (details in background section, p. 3).
- Describe the growing engagement of graduate students in the partnership – many graduate students from UNC and King’s have participated in short-term research visits at the partner university, graduate students from both campuses have collaborated to organize regular workshops and conferences, and many have also had faculty from both UNC and King’s serve on their dissertation committees. Highlight examples from history, English, and philosophy.
- Speak about the financial support provided for King’s collaborations by the Graduate School (support for workshops plus the Summer Fellowship program) and the College (from the Dean’s Office and from individual departments – all managed via the Institute for the Arts and Humanities).
- Discuss goals for the next stage of the partnership, including the potential to expand graduate student engagement, and how King’s sees the continuation of the current initiatives based in the College.
Russell Goulbourne
Dean, Faculty of Arts & Humanities
russell.goulbourne@kcl.ac.uk

Russell Goulbourne came to King’s College London in January 2014 as professor of French literature and dean of the Faculty of Arts & Humanities. Goulbourne studied at Keble College, Oxford. He then taught in the Department of French at the University of Leeds between 2000 and 2013, first as a lecturer (2000-05), then as a senior lecturer (2005-06) and finally as professor of Early Modern French literature (2006-13) and head of department (2008-11). His main research interests are in early modern French literature. He has worked on 17th and 18th century French drama and in particular on the comic theatre of Voltaire, a number of whose plays he has edited for the Voltaire Foundation’s Œuvres complètes de Voltaire. Current research projects include: a critical edition of some of Voltaire’s poetry; a study of the reception of the Roman poet Horace in 18th-century France; and a monograph on the concept of posterity in early modern France.

Raphael Woolf
Vice-Dean (External Relations), Faculty of Arts & Humanities
raphael.g.woolf@kcl.ac.uk

Raphael Woolf is vice-dean (external relations) of the Faculty of Arts & Humanities and a reader in the Department of Philosophy. He did his BA at Cambridge and his graduate study at King’s, earning his PhD in 1997. He held one-year positions at King’s and Liverpool and then taught for seven years in the Harvard University philosophy department, with a sabbatical in 2002-03 at the Institute for Advanced Study in Princeton. Woolf works mainly in ancient philosophy and has published on Plato, Aristotle, and Hellenistic philosophy.

Background Information
King’s College London Overview

History - http://www.kcl.ac.uk/aboutkings/history/index.aspx

King's College London was founded in 1829 in the tradition of the Church of England. The College has grown through mergers with several institutions. A research-led university, it has over 26,500 students (including nearly 10,400 postgraduates) from almost 150 countries and some 7,000 employees. King’s has a reputation for world-class teaching and cutting-edge research, and a distinguished reputation in the humanities, law, the sciences (including a range of health areas such as psychiatry, medicine, nursing, and dentistry), and social sciences, including international affairs. It is also the largest center for the education of healthcare professionals in Europe. King’s is 27th in the 2014-2015 Times Higher Education World University Rankings and 55th in the 2015 Shanghai Jiao Tong University’s Academic Ranking of World Universities.

UNC-King’s Strategic Alliance
http://www.kcl.ac.uk/aboutkings/worldwide/partners/unc/index.aspx

A close relationship between UNC and King’s has grown in recent years. Following the signing of a strategic alliance in October 2005, both UNC and King’s are committed to joint activity in a vast range of areas of teaching, research, and other collaborations. Undergraduate students from UNC and King's have taken part in exchanges since 2002, and the universities began a formal exchange program for undergraduates in 2004. Although the initial exchange was limited to a small number of departments, the exchange program is now open to any student majoring in the College of Arts and Sciences – including a program for UNC biology and chemistry majors which consists of a semester at King’s taking science electives followed by a summer lab placement. In 2005, the exchange agreement also expanded to provide opportunities for graduate students from the College at UNC and King’s Schools of Humanities and Social Science and Public Policy. In 2014, an exchange between law schools began. Graduate students also benefit from short-term research visits, student-organized workshops, and joint PhD committees. Collaboration between the institutions at the faculty level has taken place for a number of years, and joint faculty and graduate student activity generates regular conferences, colloquia, research projects issuing publications, and other initiatives. Areas involved in the Alliance include classics, digital humanities, English, geography, German, global studies, history, law, medieval studies, medical humanities, music, philosophy, political economy, political science, public policy, religious studies, and war studies. Faculty and schools in the health affairs have also begun developing collaborations, including dentistry, medicine, nursing, pharmacy, and public health. In 2012, UNC Global and King’s Global Engagement office began collaborating to further partnership development, including joint communications efforts, and pursuing staff exchange opportunities.

UNC-King’s Undergraduate Study Abroad/Student Exchange:

- From 2004 through spring 2016, 250 UNC students have studied at King’s, and 183 King’s students have studied at UNC.
  - UNC students at King’s (semester/year exchange or direct enrollment): 196
  - King’s students at UNC (semester/year exchange): 155
  - UNC students at King’s (summer): 54
  - King’s students at UNC (summer): 28
- UNC departments sending the most students to King’s are English & Comparative Literature; History; Peace, War & Defense; and Political Science. The most King’s students to UNC have come from English & Comparative Literature; American Studies; Classics; and Theology & Religious Studies.
- Since fall 2013, students in UNC London Honors program can enroll in two courses at King’s.
- The first summer school exchange took place in 2014. UNC students can also receive discounts for King’s Summer School.
- Since 2013-2014, students from King’s School of Biomedical Sciences and UNC’s Department of Biology have been involved in the exchange. There are ongoing discussions regarding summer laboratory placements.
- In addition to a semester exchange and summer opportunity at King’s, UNC students can directly enroll in King’s Health and Society Program, Global Health and Social Medicine Program, and can participate in a Study Abroad Plus Internship Program.
The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

Visit by King’s College London
Faculty of Arts & Humanities
April 5-8, 2016

Delegation
- Russell Goulbourne, Dean, Faculty of Arts & Humanities
- Raphael Woolf, Vice-Dean (External Relations), Faculty of Arts & Humanities

Agenda

Wed., April 6
Note: Woolf only will participate in morning meetings; Goulbourne will join when he arrives.

8:30 am  Meet Melissa McMurray in front of Hampton Inn to travel to campus.

8:45 – 9:15 am  Welcome and Overview
Location: 1203 FedEx Global Education Center

UNC Attendees:
Bob Miles, Associate Dean for Study Abroad & International Exchanges, College of Arts & Sciences
Katie Bowler Young, Director of Global Relations, UNC Global

9:15 – 9:45 am  Global Relations: Events and Exhibitions
Location: 1203 FedEx Global Education Center

UNC Attendees:
Bob Miles, Associate Dean for Study Abroad & International Exchanges, College of Arts & Sciences
Katie Bowler Young, Director of Global Relations, UNC Global
Ingrid Smith, Events and Exhibitions Manager, UNC Global

10:00 – 11:00 am  Collaborations: Philosophy
Location: 101B Caldwell Hall

UNC Attendees:
Marc Lange, Chair and Theda Perdue Distinguished Professor, Department of Philosophy, College of Arts & Sciences
Bob Miles, Associate Dean for Study Abroad & International Exchanges, College of Arts & Sciences
Melissa McMurray, International Liaison Officer, UNC Global
12:00 – 1:30 pm  Lunch: Study Abroad and Student Exchanges
Location: Top of the Hill Restaurant and Brewery, 505C W. Franklin St.

UNC Attendees:
Bob Miles, Associate Dean for Study Abroad & International Exchanges, College of Arts & Sciences
Emily Marlton, Northern Europe & Oceania Programs Director, Study Abroad Office, College of Arts & Sciences
Adrienne Cromwell, Interim Director of Advising and International Student Program Manager, Study Abroad Office, College of Arts & Sciences

2:00 – 2:45 pm  Collaborations: Religious Studies and Theology
Location: 1203 FedEx Global Education Center

UNC Attendees:
Randall Styers, Associate Professor and Chair, Department of Religious Studies, College of Arts & Sciences
Brendan Thornton, Assistant Professor, Department of Religious Studies, College of Arts & Sciences
Bob Miles, Associate Dean for Study Abroad & International Exchanges, College of Arts & Sciences
Melissa McMurray, International Liaison Officer, UNC Global

3:00 – 3:45 pm  Summer School
Location: 1203 FedEx Global Education Center

UNC Attendees:
Jan Yopp, Dean, Summer School
Bob Miles, Associate Dean for Study Abroad & International Exchanges, College of Arts & Sciences
Katie Bowler Young, Director of Global Relations, UNC Global

4:00 – 5:00 pm  Collaborations: English and Comparative Literature
Location: 1203 FedEx Global Education Center
Note: After, Melissa can provide transportation back to Hampton Inn (if needed).

UNC Attendees:
Marsha Collins, Professor of Comparative Literature and Director of International Programs, Department of English & Comparative Literature, College of Arts & Sciences
Mary Floyd-Wilson, Bowman and Gordon Gray Distinguished Term Professor, Department of English and Comparative Literature, College of Arts & Sciences
Bob Miles, Associate Dean for Study Abroad & International Exchanges, College of Arts & Sciences
Katie Bowler Young, Director of Global Relations, UNC Global

6:00 – 7:30 pm  King’s College London Alumni Event
Location: Carolina Inn
Thurs., April 7

8:45 am  Meet Melissa in front of Hampton Inn to travel to campus.

9:00 – 10:15 am  Collaborations: Arts and Humanities
Location: Hyde Hall

UNC Attendees:
Mark Katz, Director, Institute for the Arts & Humanities; and Ruel W. Tyson Jr. Distinguished Professor, Department of Music, College of Arts & Sciences
Bob Miles, Associate Dean for Study Abroad & International Exchanges, College of Arts & Sciences
Melissa McMurray, International Liaison Officer, UNC Global

10:30 – 11:15 am  Collaborations: Graduate Students
Location: 236 Bynum Hall

UNC Attendees:
Steve Matson, Dean, The Graduate School
Bob Miles, Associate Dean for Study Abroad & International Exchanges, College of Arts & Sciences
Melissa McMurray, International Liaison Officer, UNC Global

11:15am–12:15pm  Campus Tour with Melissa McMurray

12:15 – 1:45 pm  Lunch: College of Arts & Sciences
Location: Crossroads Restaurant, Carolina Inn, 211 Pittsboro St.

UNC Attendees:
Jonathan Hartlyn, Senior Associate Dean for Social Sciences and Global Programs, College of Arts & Sciences
Terry Rhodes, Senior Associate Dean for Fine Arts and Humanities, College of Arts & Sciences
Bob Miles, Associate Dean for Study Abroad & International Exchanges, College of Arts & Sciences

2:00 – 3:00 pm  Collaborations: History
Location: 560 Hamilton Hall

UNC Attendees:
W. Fitzhugh Brundage, William Umstead Distinguished Professor and Chair, Department of History, College of Arts & Sciences
Chad Bryant, Associate Professor and Director of Graduate Studies, Department of History, College of Arts & Sciences
Bob Miles, Associate Dean for Study Abroad & International Exchanges, College of Arts & Sciences
Katie Bowler Young, Director of Global Relations, UNC Global

3:30 – 4:30 pm  Collaborations: Music and Classics
Location: 1203 FedEx Global Education Center

UNC Attendees:
Andrea Bohlman, Assistant Professor, Department of Music, College of Arts & Sciences
Janet Downie, Assistant Professor, Department of Classics, College of Arts & Sciences
Michael Figueroa, Assistant Professor, Department of Music, College of Arts & Sciences
Luca Grillo, Assistant Professor, Department of Classics, College of Arts & Sciences
James Rives, Kenan Eminent Professor and Chair, Department of Classics, College of Arts & Sciences
Bob Miles, Associate Dean for Study Abroad & International Exchanges, College of Arts & Sciences
Katie Bowler Young, Director of Global Relations, UNC Global

4:30 – 5:30 pm  Coffee with King’s Students at UNC
Location: 3009 FedEx Global Education Center
Note: After, Melissa can provide transportation back to Hampton Inn.

6:30 pm  Wrap-Up Dinner with Katie Bowler Young and Bob Miles
Location: Acme Food & Beverage Co., 110 E. Main St, Carrboro (from the hotel, turn left on E. Main St. and walk about two blocks; Acme is on the same side of the street)

Fri., April 8
Note: Woolf only will participate in meetings on the 8th.

8:45 am  Meet Melissa in front of Hampton Inn to travel to campus.

9:00 – 9:45 am  Robin Visser, Associate Professor and Chair, Department of Asian Studies, College of Arts & Sciences
Location: 121 New West
Other UNC Attendees:
Bob Miles, Associate Dean for Study Abroad & International Exchanges, College of Arts & Sciences
Melissa McMurray, International Liaison Officer, UNC Global

10:00 – 10:45 am  Mary Sheriff, W.R. Kenan, Jr. Distinguished Professor of Art History and Director of Graduate Studies, Department of Art, College of Arts & Sciences
Location: 207 Hanes Art Center
Other UNC Attendees:
Bob Miles, Associate Dean for Study Abroad & International Exchanges, College of Arts & Sciences
Katie Bowler Young, Director of Global Relations, UNC Global

11:00 – 11:45 am  Adam Versényi, Professor and Chair, Department of Dramatic Art, College of Arts & Sciences
Location: 224 Center for Dramatic Arts
Other UNC Attendees:
Bob Miles, Associate Dean for Study Abroad & International Exchanges, College of Arts & Sciences
Katie Bowler Young, Director of Global Relations, UNC Global